

He came across a bunch of thieves. They put the question on: "Who Are You?"; "I am one of you!" replied the Sultan...

Afterward each explained the skills that they bear.
One of them said: "My gift is in my ear.
It translates the bark of dogs,
this dog is saying that Sultan is among us!"
And they all laughed on him saying: "What a brogger!"

The second one said: "My gift is in my eyes,
whatever I see in the darkness of the night,
I recognize it in the day and light."

Thus said the third man:
"I have the arms of a superman;
my punch will come out from its rear
if I punch a safe or any barrier."

The fourth one said: "Behold!
I have a nose that smells the gold!"
It tells me by smelling the sand
if there is a treasure close at hand!"

The fifth one said: "I can use my rope like a ladder and easily enter every building in this manner."

Thereafter they all asked the King: "O man, what special gift do you doing?"
"My gift is in my beard!" Replied the King;
"When the thieves are arrested in chain
I can set them free with a wig-wag of my chin!"

"WOW!"; said the thives in refrain!

"Sniff, Sniff!"; said the one with diag-nose. "There is a treasure in this place!" and the smell guided them to the Royal Palace. By throwing the rope ladder and making holes in the walls they all entered the burglarize. They divided the loot amongst themselves at a fast pace And each of them went to hide his share in his own place.

